General Information

Intended Audience

These educational events are designed to present state-of-the-art information for physicians, nurses, dispatchers, first responders, emergency medical technicians, paramedics, firefighters, law enforcement, coroners, medical examiners, public health professionals, school administrators, crisis preparedness team, educators and any professional who is involved in trauma care.

Statement of Need

Preventing injury and caring for the traumatically injured patient during an emergency situation is a challenge for all providers of care. The "Reality" of traumatic situations can cause stress to all responders. Participation affords an experience that can be useful in everyday practice by all providers of care.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of the events, participants will be able to:

- Discuss and expand the understanding of the incidence, nature and severity of traumatic emergencies and occurrence of injuries.
- Identify emergency care for all traumatically injured adults and children from dispatch to the hospital setting.
- Increase assessment and management of the injured person for all providers of care.
- Relate the benefits of multidisciplinary collaboration in the implementation of community-based injury prevention strategies

Call for Posters

Please consider sharing your program, clinical expertise or injury prevention strategy with conference attendees. We are accepting poster abstracts in the areas of:

- 1) Service and education models that work
- 2) Injury prevention strategies for communities
- 3) Clinical practices and procedures
- 4) Formal research

Poster abstracts are due October 15, 2006. Abstracts will be peer-reviewed and you will be notified by November 1, 2006 if your submission has been accepted. Accepted poster presenters receive one complimentary conference registration. Due to space and budgetary constraints, there will be a limit to the number of accepted poster abstracts.

Poster displays will be held on November 10 and 11. Posters should be ready for display by 7:00AM on Friday November 10.

For further information or to receive the application, contact Nan Peterson, RN, MS at nmpeters@wisc.edu or 608-262-9993 or the WATS website at www.wats.cehss.org.

AWARDS: Nominations now being accepted!

2006 Wisconsin Division of American Trauma Society Service Awards

The Wisconsin Division of American Trauma Society will be recognizing an individual or organization that has accomplished outstanding achievement in trauma and prevention services for adults and children and to encourage continued excellence in the field.
